Cobb's "Fifty-Fifty" Lecture to Be Given Here Greatest Effort

"Fifty-Fifty," the subject of Irving Cobb's brand new lecture which he will deliver at the Auditorium Tuesday, March 7, is a typical "Cobbese" discussion of American people, big and little, rich and poor, good and bad. He turns his funny spotlight on all of us, and his audience laughs, laughs and sometimes roars at his inimitable sallies and his funny epigrams. It is more than a humorous talk—it is a horse sense lecture, which inspires better Americanism. Press reports say it is Cobb's greatest platform effort.

Cobb needs no introduction to the American public. He is known by every newspaper man in the United States as a star reporter. He is known among the great war correspondents developed during the European turmoil. He is known in the literary magazine world as one of America's keenest writers. He is a man who keeps in touch with American life. He is, in fact, a national institution.

Story of "Way Down East" Interesting

Ordinarily it would appear unnecessary to tell the story of "Way Down East," the play having been shown each season for the last twenty-two years, but the fact that it is to be presented in photoplay form at the Auditorium for a run of two days, Saturday and Sunday, and in each form elaborated to an unusual extent by D. W. Griffith, makes the re-telling of the tale at once interesting and, perhaps, even timely to the theatergoer who practically knows the play by heart.

Mr. Griffith has extended the original story, has added to it and thrown about it a myriad of striking scenes and spectacular episodes, all of which gives an excuse for a synopsis, at least as presented by this master producer of screen classics. In this connection it may be well to emphasize the scenes and incidents that the motion picture producer has found lacking in the original work.

Anna Moore, a slip of a girl, is dispatched by her mother from their humble home in rural New England to the Boston home of wealthy relatives to pay before the latter the fact that they are in dire straits for funds. The girl falters at telling the nature of her errand, an eccentric aunt happens along, takes a whim to dress her in fine clothes and introduces her to society. Her simple beauty attracts the youths of this new circle and one particular son of wealth sees an opportunity for fresh conquest. He tricks the girl into a mock marriage and after a brief honeymoon sends her back home pledged to keep the secret as he pleads news of the marriage will prevent him from securing funds at the time. She has said nothing about the money needed at home, thinking naturally that with her rich husband there will be no necessity for calling on the relatives for help.

After a patient wait at home she sends for her husband to tell him the news. He comes, she imparts the tender information of an impending event—the most sacred in the life of a woman. In a few short words she tells that they are married and stalks out. The girl's mother dies suddenly and she flees her native village and secludes herself in a distant inn, where her baby is born. With the death of her child, Anna is nearly told her penance is not desired at the inn and she sends onward into a drab world to seek a livelihood. Then she goes to the home of Squire Bartlett, and is engaged as a domestic and simple folk, who look upon themselves as a part of the family. There she meets David, a true and noble son of the house, while the man who had brought on the girl her suffering and disgrace bargains in the village. He occupies an exalted position, a magnificent country estate nearby. Threading her way, she attempts to drive her story, as he is preparing his exit to tell her of a deed of the past.

A wretched couple arrives at the inn one day in the village of Anna's shame. Learning that Squire Bartlett, outraged under the girl's sin, has banished her from the place, she turns a bitter laugh and she denounces the pair who have traced her and at a time when he is an honored guest in the house, she is driven from. The girl, it is said, defines his father and pursues the girl through the raging waters. She wanders through the snow to the inn at the river's mouth and is there, in the grasp of an ice-berg. Her rescue is the story just as she is taken care of in the house of Squire Bartlett. The ending of the tale is the climax of a thrilling scene, which has seldom been equaled in any screen production.

The striking scenes of spectacular splendor were not shown in the stage drama and practically all of the scenes, including the ending, which Mr. Griffith realized in this production, were only referred to in dialogue in the stage play.

Among recent arrivals at the Ridgewood are W. H. Penhaligon of Boston; M. S. Straughton of New York; B. Marks of Albany; Mr. and Mrs. M. Wilensky of Savannah; Mrs. J. F. Soelling and Mr. and Mrs. William Hudett of New York; R. W. Anderson of Albany; Mr. and Mrs. George A. Merritt and baby of Duluth, Minn.; W. H. Tallman and L. F. Hyde of New London, Conn.; Leonard D. Fiske of Hartford, Conn.; C. R. Wilcox of Jacksonville; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Elsas of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Godwin of Brooklyn.

SEASIDE INN

John Corey of Chicago is a guest of the Seaside Inn for an indefinite period.

A. C. Busch of Cincinnati is at the Seaside Inn for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Steele of Tampa, who are motoring to Jacksonville, stopped for a short stay at the Seaside Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Thomas of Indianapolis are at the Seaside Inn for a stay of some time.

Mrs. Landolt and Miss Landolt, Mrs. S. M. Tuthill and Miss A. C. Baer of Brooklyn, who are guests of the Seaside Inn, spent yesterday at the fair in Orlando. Mrs. Landolt's son is head of the Penn Brass and Bronze Works of Brooklyn, which furnished much of the material used in the construction of the depot at Jacksonville. Mrs. Landolt also has an interest in the concern.

HOTEL MORGAN

Clock golf and card games furnished the amusements for the guests of the Morgan during the week, and many enjoyable hours were spent. Mrs. W. H. Keller won first prize in the 500 game, while Mrs. Wooster was awarded the booby; another first prize was won by Miss Josephine Williams for being the successful contestant in the game of Anagrams, and Miss Boise got the booby in this instance.

In order to make things interesting for the clock golfers, G. A. Fitter generously donated a silver cup as a prize and a series of hard fought games was the result. Eight players lined up for the final game and after a closely played game, Miss S. H. Snow of Boston was declared the winner, getting the beautiful cup as a prize for her skill.

The Morgan is well filled at present, reservations having been taken up rapidly during the week, and among those registered are Mrs. S. H. Mathews of Lincoln, Neb.; Mrs. Anna M. Flanagan of Orleans, Mich.; H. S. Bradford of Brookline, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. L. Kaufman of Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Betts of Atlanta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Safford and Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Ramey of Omaha, Neb.

Mayor and Mrs. John Farr of Daytona Beach entertained a party of friends at the Morgan on Thursday evening, all of them being from Chicago. This party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Johnson, F. L. Johnson, Jr., and Miss Evelyn Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson, Mr. Bang and J. L. Johnson of Daytona Beach, who were delighted with the cuisine of this popular hotel.

Florida has more miles of fishing waters than any other state in the union.

Haynes to Manage Country Club in N. Y. this Summer

Henry W. Haynes, owner and manager of the Princess Islena Hotel, has been selected to manage the Hamilton Country Club at Lake Pleasant, N. Y. Mr. Haynes is one of the most successful hotel managers in the country and his success with the Hamilton Country Club already is assured.

Concerning Mr. Haynes and the Hamilton Club the Morning Herald, Amsterdam, N. Y., says in part:

"The Hamilton Country Club at Lake Pleasant, under a contract closed yesterday, has secured the services as manager for next season, Henry W. Haynes, of Seabreeze, Fla. Mr. Haynes, who is the owner and manager of the beautiful Princess Islena hotel, in the Florida city, is recognized as one of the most successful and popular hotel men in that state."

"Under Mr. Haynes' management the hotel has increased from one of 28 rooms, to one of 80 rooms and his popular management has always kept it well filled."

"Mr. Haynes though now only a young man filled the position of manager of the Maplewood, at Pittsfield, Mass., and was for three years manager of the Algonquin club, in New Jersey."

"Many men of note including President Harding and Senator Cummings have been the guests of the Hotel Princess Islena. Several residents of Amsterdam who have stopped at the southern hotel owned by Mr. Haynes speak in high terms of the splendid service and table provided by Mr. Haynes."

Wind-Up of Elks Baseball Carnival at Casino Tonight

Tonight is the big night at the Elks baseball carnival.

This is the night when everybody who takes a chance will get something for his money and is very likely to get something very valuable for a very small piece of change.

Tonight will mark the close of the carnival and everything is going to be put on the block, so to speak. Everything that is not disposed of by the various booths will be placed in the country store and disposed of in some fashion.

The carnival has been a great success so far and if the weather man is good, and the weather permits the attendance that is expected, it should prove the most successful ever held here. All Elks and all others who like to have a good time are urged to be in attendance on the closing night.
